

JACKIES WILL HAVE THEIR SUNDAY FUN

Admiral Pendleton Decisive in Answer to Protests of Ministers.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—"If the Philadelphia preachers would come down to League Island Navy-Yard and investigate this Sunday sport question before they talk of gross violations of Sunday laws they would be able to tell a different story." This was the reply in an interview of Admiral Pendleton, commander of the League Island Navy Yard, to a resolution adopted by the Presbyterian ministers of this city criticizing the naval authorities for permitting Sunday sports and Sunday dancing at the navy yard.

The Admiral declared that he would not for a moment interfere with the liberty of the sailors on shore or on ship, and if they played baseball and football on Sunday and had other amusements on that day at the yard it was better than to be roaming around the city to be made the victims of unscrupulous persons.

He had no knowledge of the reported dancing on board two of the battleships last Sunday, but he said it was a thing that occurred in the navy yard. He was not at the navy yard on Sunday and that this is understood by the various crews. Continuing, the Admiral said:

"The men have their planes and they want music. It is perfectly natural that such a visiting day as Sunday should be the signal for some social enjoyment. Suppose, then, that these men, having young women with them, place their arms around the women and wait for a little while around? Does that call for a protest to the President?"

REFUSES TO APPEAR AGAINST FRIEND

Man Who Lost Watch Anxious to "Reach Howard Gould or Shearn."

Thomas S. Duffee, who said he was a bookkeeper and lived at No. 111 West Forty-third street, was sent to the House of Detention to-day by Lieut. Ormsby, of the Eldridge street station, after he had refused to press a complaint against one George W. Hoyt, who wouldn't give his address, and who was charged with stealing Duffee's $50 watch.

Duffee seemed to have some excellent reason for not appearing against Hoyt. When asked to do so by the Lieutenant, Hoyt interrupted.

"Tom," he said, "if you make any charge against me I'll squeal on you and you know what'll happen."

The threat had instantaneous effect. "Oh, my God!" Duffee exclaimed, and nearly fainted.

"I shall send you to the House of Detention," said the Lieutenant to Duffee, "and make sure you appear."

"Send me anywhere," replied Duffee, "but send me where I can reach Howard Gould or Shearn."

Duffee wouldn't say another word. He was gorgeously arrayed in fashionable clothes. The watch Hoyt is accused of stealing was recovered by Policeman Stein, who says he took it from Hoyt's pocket while the latter was leaning comfortably against the bar in a saloon at No. 9 Bowery, where the theft is said to have occurred.

Stein said Duffee was in the rear room of the saloon and fell asleep, and that while he was dreaming the watch got away. Stein got into the affair through two sightseers who were in the drinking place. They are said to have seen the operation.
